

PRESS RELEASE

High Mountain Golf Club Raises Funds for PCTI's "Food for the Needy"

Wayne, NJ – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – Passaic County Technical Institute's (PCTI) Education Foundation received a special donation last week as High Mountain Golf Pro Patrick Lawler turned a friendly game of golf into a very special event.

Two members of High Mountain Golf Club, Vic Ramos and Marvin Schleyer, played a match to raise money for PCTI's "Food for the Needy" program. Both golfers contributed to the cause, along with the generosity of many High Mountain members. The total amount raised was $2,500!

The program is sponsored by PCTI's Education Foundation and will be used to feed needy families during Thanksgiving and the holiday season. PCTI Superintendent Diana C. Lobosco and Education Foundation President Al Alexander were touched by the demonstration of kindness and good will during this special season. "With this donation, needy families of our district will be able to truly enjoy the holidays with good food, friends, and celebrations," Mrs. Lobosco said. Education Foundation President Al Alexander added, "I would like to thank those who dedicated their time and donations in order to make this event a success. Your generosity will make our recipients very happy."

Donations are still being accepted for this worthwhile program. Anyone wishing to contribute to "Food for the Needy" may contact Mr. Alexander at PO Box 341 Totowa, NJ 07512 or Mr. Lawler at the High Mountain Golf Club. Checks can be made payable to PCTI's Education Foundation.

Photo Caption: PCTI Education Foundation Treasurer Michael Coscia (left) and Principal Dr. Michael Parent (right) accept the big check donation from High Mountain Golf Pro Patrick Lawler (center).