Students Foster Awareness for Rare Diseases

Wayne, NJ – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – Students of Passaic County Technical Institute (PCTI) dedicated themselves to a noble cause when members of the College Learning Strategies (CLS) Project Advance class raised awareness for Rare Disease Day. Under the instruction of Nicole Shema, they collected donations for a student jeans day and raised $2,679! CLS students also created a hand mural to add to the Handprints Across America gallery. It’s expected that this charity event will be passed down to PCTI’s future CLS classes.

PCTI students of the CLS Project Advance class spread awareness and raised funds in honor of Rare Disease Day.
