Shakespeare Live Performs at PCTI

Wayne, NJ – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE – Junior and senior English students of Passaic County Technical Institute (PCTI) received a dose of dramatic culture when The Shakespeare Theatre of New Jersey performed Macbeth. The play was entirely engaging and drew audience members in with colorful costumes and spectacular acting. The event was made possible by a mini grant from PCTI’s Education Foundation, which strives to broaden students’ horizons through various educational endeavors and scholarships.

After the performance, School of Performing Arts students were privy to an intimate Q&A session with actors from the Shakespeare Live company. The informative session shed light on the unique brand of education necessary to pursue careers in theatre and beyond.

Special thanks to Instructors Maureen Wacha and Patrick Bennett for spearheading this wildly educational initiative!

Macbeth demands answers of the Wyrd sisters regarding his kingly prophecy.
